A food processing equipment maker based in Norwich has boosted its presence in the Middle East after signing a deal to provide products to a batch fried crisp factory in Kuwait.

Fabcon Food Systems has provided the systems for a £1.5m production line in the new factory, which is owned by the AlWazzan Foodstuff Industries Group.

Trevor Howard, managing director of Fabcon Food Systems, said: "We were approached by AlWazzan's owner Muntaser AlWazzan after he learned about our expertise in building batch crisp lines.

"The purpose-built factory is hugely innovative and the facility is an exciting new venture in a new market for Muntaser and his company. They now have a 21st century production plant to support their business as it quickly expands across the region."

Muntaser AlWazzan, of AlWazzan Foodstuff Industries Group, added: "To operate a successful facility we required the best equipment, knowledge and expertise. Fabcon's team has delivered all of those things and expertly saw the project from start to completion."

Fabcon was formed in 2014 and now employs a 24-strong team in Delta Close.
